

Peer-to-peer exchange on BURs

Background of the regional working group

The International Partnership on Mitigation and MRV considers itself to be a knowledge broker between the international climate negotiations and national action on climate change. The overall aim of the Partnership is to support a practical exchange on mitigation-related activities and MRV between developing and developed countries in order to help close the global ambition gap. In order to generate added value not only at global level for the negotiations but also from the negotiations for practical implementation at regional, national and sub-national level, the Partnership seeks to work with various partners in regional groups.

Hence, recent Partnership activities in the African region embarked on vivid regional cooperation and peer-to-peer activities on MRV systems. The starting point was a workshop held in South Africa in May 2013 at the invitation of the Government of South Africa, where policy-makers from eight African countries (Egypt, Ethiopia, Ghana, Kenya, Mali, Tunisia, South Africa, Zambia) discussed respective strengths and challenges in their national reporting systems and shared their experiences within the regional group.

Rationale

Biennial Update Reports (BUR) are considered as one of the central pieces of the global mitigation architecture and the upcoming 2015 agreement because they improve transparency through tracking mitigation progress and thereby reinforce ambition at a global level. In addition, BURs and the required national MRV system are supposed to enhance transparency and increase ambition at national level by providing the information basis for planning and implementing mitigation action. The first BURs should be submitted to the UNFCCC in December 2014.

Given this setting, the International Partnership on Mitigation and MRV, in cooperation with Environmental Protection Agency, Ghana, will organize the second meeting of the African Regional Group. The focus of the workshop will be on BURs and the required national system. Both countries, Ghana and South Africa, are highly involved in Partnership activities. Both countries are currently in the preparation process of their first national Biennial Update Report. This workshop will provide the opportunity to share their national experiences in an expert forum with the possibilities for other countries to draw from the lessons learnt.

Objective of the second regional workshop

The aim of the planned regional workshop is to exchange the experience of the BUR preparation process, the latest MRV system developments, and related institutional arrangements among the African region.

Format and Participants

The workshop is designed for up to 30 participants of the ECOWAS and SADC region, including policy makers, climate change practitioners and climate change experts from the regional group of the International Partnership on Mitigation and MRV, namely: Angola, Egypt, Ethiopia, Gambia, Ghana, Kenya, Lesotho, Malawi, Mozambique, Namibia, Nigeria, South Africa, Swaziland, Tanzania, Zambia, and Zimbabwe.

In addition to the experience exchange of the country representatives, input of international experts and hands-on exercises support the understanding of the BUR guidelines, the development of a check list for the preparation of BURs and the adaptation of the developed BUR template. This template has been developed on the basis of expertise from the Information Matters project and will be tailored to the specific regional needs during the workshop.

Time and location

3-days workshop in Berlin (Germany), October 15 – 17

Location of the Workshop: Kalkscheune, Johannisstraße 2, 10117 Berlin, Germany
